And God created Trash

The Hamburg Deichtorhallen present the first comprehensive exhibition of American artist Marilyn Minter in Germany

It began with photographs of her mother, a former fine lady who spent her days in bed and gave the cigarettes with the same passion and the make-up, the Whisky and the eyeliner.

It continued with hyper-realistically painted portraits of Pamela Anderson and with pictures of necklines, lips, high heels. The subject remained the same: Marilyn Minter, whose work first presented in Germany is large now understands Glamour and trash as anthropological constants. Behind the icy surfaces of her work lurks the decline, and the glitter is just as mortal as nature.
